First International Congress on menopause in India

Mumbai, Dec 10 (UNI) The International Menopause Society (IMS) in association with the Indian Menopause Society held the first ever international congress on menopause in India here.

Speaking at the event, Gynaecologist and fertility expert Dr Duru Shah, Organising President of the Congress and member of the Board of IMS, highlighted some of the key points and raised issues that contribute to affecting the health of Indian women.

"In India, with an increasing number of women getting married at a much later stage their lives and postponing childbearing, the midlife health of women in our country, especially women between the ages of 50-60 face this threat.
